An Attachment-Based Model of Parental Alienation: Foundations (Childress, 2015)

Foundations: An Attachment Based Model of Parental Alienation

(<https://www.amazon.com/Attachment-Based-Model-Parental-Alienation-Foundations/dp/0996114505>)

This is a full and complete description of the pathology from within three separate levels of analysis, family systems therapy, personality disorder pathology (complex trauma), and attachment pathology, and also integrates the description of the pathology across all three levels, describing how the childhood attachment trauma of the parent leads to this parent's personality disorder pathology, when then causes the family systems pathology.

This booklet describes and clinical psychology assessment protocol for attachment-related conflict surrounding divorce. This booklet is a resource that parents and attorneys can provide to mental health professionals and the court regarding the desired assessment for attachment-related family pathology.

The Narcissistic Parent

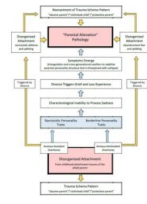

The Narcissistic Parent (Childress, 2016)

This is a resource for legal professionals to understand the narcissistic personality pathology of the parent, and how it influences their parenting behaviors. It is structured around direct quotes from the professional literature. It is also a resource for parents to provide to their involved legal professionals.

Early Essays

Parental Alienation as Child Abuse (2010)

This is the first essays I wrote, a decade ago. It was as true then as it is now, 10 years of child abuse, unrecognized by professional psychology, untreated by professional psychology. Where is the American Psychological Association and a call for professional competence?

The Narcissistic Personality in Divorce and the Origins of Parental Alienation Processes (Childress, 2011)

This is one of my more fully elaborated discussions of the personality disorder pathology. That was what I was focused on working out in 2010-2012.

Narcissistic Personality in Divorce and the Origins of Parental Alienation Processes \(Childress, 2011\) (<https://drcachildress-consulting.com/wp-content/uploads/2019/11/Narcissistic-Personality-in-Divorce-and-the-Origins-of-Parental-Alienation-Processes-Childress-2011.pdf>).

The Construction of Meaning, the Developing Brain, and Parental Alienation (Childress, 2011)

This is an early essay on the co-construction of meaning in the pathological parent-child relationship with the allied parent. Moving into intersubjectivity and the neuro-development of the brain will be important.

Boundaries of Competence (Childress, 2011)

This is an early essay from 2011 on professional boundaries of competence related to parental alienation pathology. This is exactly the same line carried forward in the 2019 Petition to the APA. Identified violations to the APA ethics code have been occurring in forensic psychology for a decade, yet the APA does nothing.
